	Coaching Philosophy
I love the game of soccer. This game has taught me a lot as a player, as a coach, and as a fan! I love the fact that this game proves that you, and your team, are only as good as the effort you give that day. With numerous variables, all of which can affect the outcome of the game, it is much like life. As all you can do as a player, as a person, is bring your very best every day, and try to be better than you were yesterday. I love coaching young soccer players and helping them realize these struggles, and finding ways to overcome them making them stronger. In 2017/2018, this team is going to be a very competitive team, playing at the highest level they can. It will require them to commit to being at training and games consistently. This will be a team where girls will have to put soccer over other sports and social activities (some these things can be possible, please just communicate with me). The commitment will be reciprocated by all girls on the team. Together they will push themselves to be better players. This next year is a very important year for these girls (if they are interested in playing soccer after high school). My intention is to play our league games in UYSA, but that will not be our priority so much. The priority will be to attend tournaments that will allow them to showcase themselves to colleges. Throughout the year, we will be hosting team "college nights" where we will make sure the girls are contacting coaches, keeping up on their grades, planning on, and practicing for, their ACT's, etc. Now, make no mistake! We will be competing, trying to win our UYSA bracket, as always, however we will make a conscious effort to see what is out there for them past their high school experience.
